

About our client

Our client provides customers with a fully transparent travel experience by allowing them to make informed decisions by comparing product offers from different suppliers against a wide range of attributes.

AMT is building a customer-centric distribution platform which will enable travel suppliers to innovate and sell new products and services, allowing customers to access these with the least effort and cost.

Scope

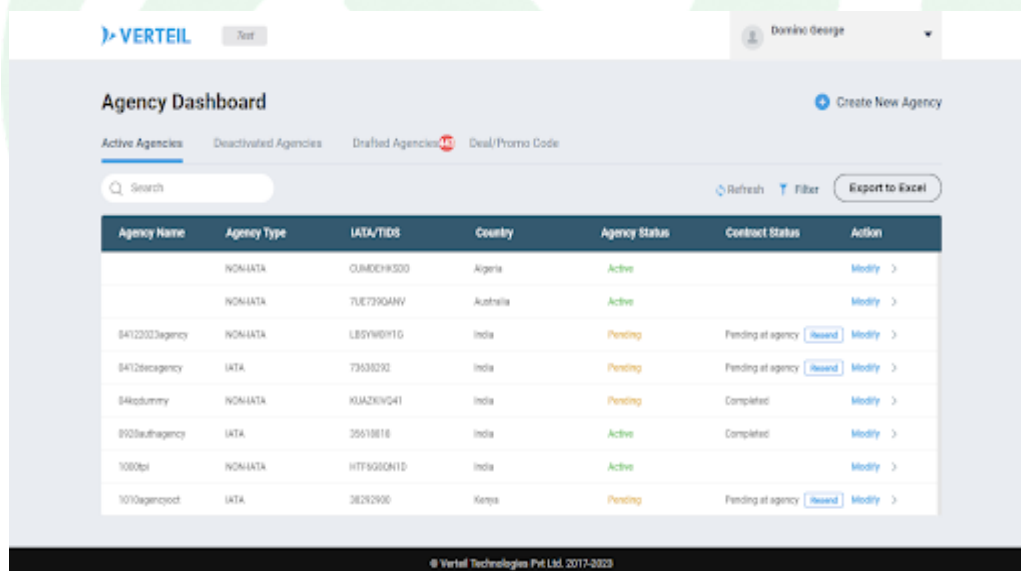

Customers can now get all their travel requirements addressed on this one website unlike visiting multiple websites to book an airline ticket and then to book ancillary services.

The problem

The biggest challenge we faced was to incorporate the services of various airlines with varied designs and integrate them into a single and unique platform.

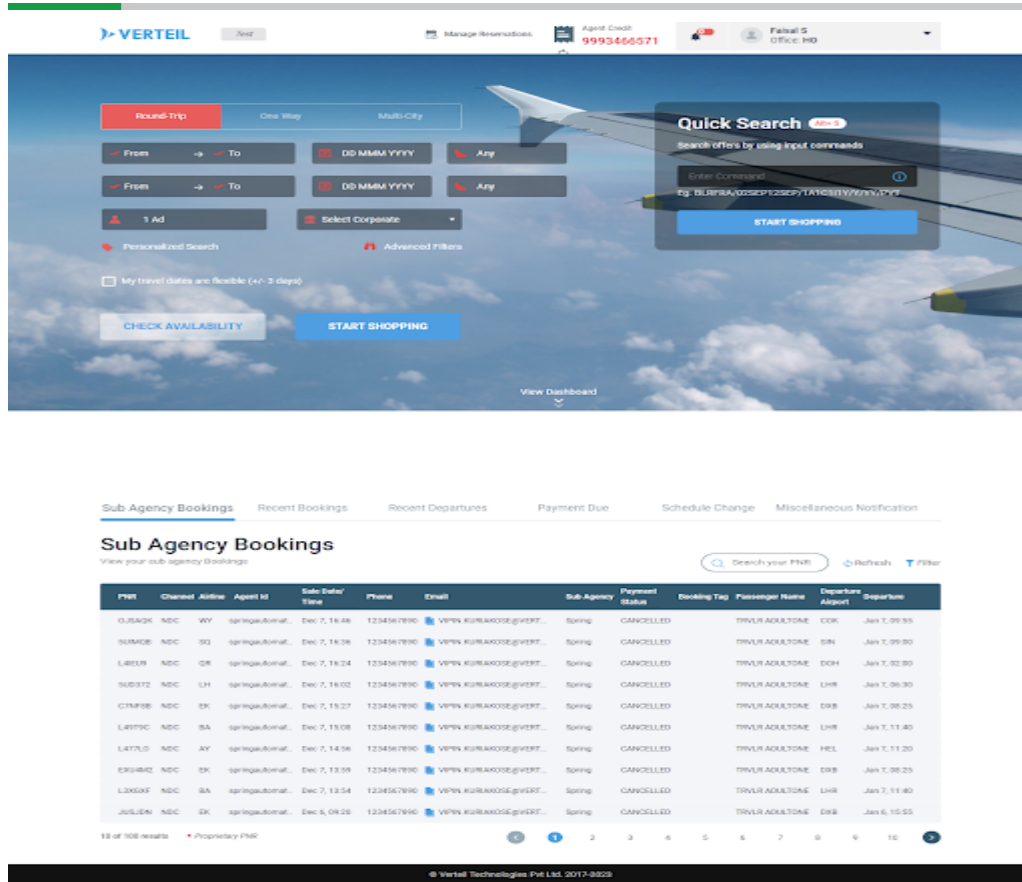

Solution

A few design challenges were overcome by implementing the Giphy images as it is compatible with many social platforms to improve the site's performance and make it more appealing to the customers.
